For those who really want to get to know the “Invicta”, the best way is undoubtedly by staying at the Pestana Vintage Porto Hotel & World Heritage Site. Created from the rebuilding of two blocks of buildings dating back to the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, it is considered a World Heritage Site by virtue of the careful conservation of the buildings' original features. Overlooking the river, the “Caves de Gaia” and the “Dom Luís Bridge”, it presents the main elements of the North to those who arrive: the Douro river, port wine and filigree.

Exclusive, luxurious and secluded, the Pestana Vintage Porto is perfect for who want to discover a more sophisticated and different side of Portugal. With a very active cultural lifestyle, a gastronomic scene in constant renewal and a commercial environment that combines a vintage side with the most modern design, Porto is a real European hot city. It is this spirit that you will find during your stay - the original chairs designed by architect Fernando Távora, evoking the 50s, mixed with contemporary illustrations and retro reinterpretations of polaroids.

The streets surrounding the hotel are very well known for the bohemian life and the nocturnal appeal. Besides the traditional precautions, the Pestana Vintage Porto has some closed windows and double insulation on the windows, to ensure you can make the most of the hours of rest when you're in the room, while being in the center of the action.

The rooms have a unique atmosphere, complemented by superb views.

Allow yourself the pleasure of falling asleep and waking up in the most emblematic scenery of the town.

Porto is the origin of Portugal's name. Porto is one of the oldest Portuguese cities, and is also known as "Cidade Invicta", because it has never been defeated in battle by invading forces. The Historic Centre of Porto was declared a World Heritage in 1996. In 2012, Porto was distinguished as the Best European Destination. The city is known worldwide for its Port Wine, and for its old and contemporary architecture, and for the five bridges that define the historical epochs of the city. Next to the river and to the sea, Porto is a city of contrasts in which medieval arcades coexist with buildings such as the "Casa de Música". It is a captivating city, the character and the hospitality of its inhabitants invite one to visit it again and again.

TO DO FROM BOAVISTA TO FOZ

The “Casa da Música” is located at the junction of the Rotunda and the Avenida da Boavista – a masterpiece of the Dutch architect Rem Koolhaas. It is one of the most important musical institutions in the country and no visitor should miss it. Following the Avenida da Boavista, the points of interest succeed one another: from the coffee bars and the terraces to the small palaces that dominate the second half of this avenue.

Halfway through, you can visit the Contemporary Art Museum of the Serralves Foundation, a work by the architect Siza Vieira, and spend some time in the magnificent gardens of the “Casa da Serralves”. From here, you can opt to descend to the sea through the Avenida Marechal Gomes da Costa, or take the Avenida da Boavista, crossing the immense city park, which leads to the sand of the “Castelo do Queijo” beach. Whatever your choice is, a wonderful sunset awaits you at any of the numerous beaches of the Foz do Douro.

TO DO A WALK ON THE RIVER SIDEWALK

Embedded in the meanders of the Douro River and the traces of the city's wall, the "Ribeira do Porto" invites one to take a walk to discover the narrow streets, stairs and small avenues in which it is still possible to sense the authenticity of the inhabitants, the old houses and the small shops and restaurants, in a mosaic of sounds and smells which visitors will discover while they ascend the hill towards the Cathedral.

It is said that the best views of Porto can be enjoyed from the "Ribeira de Gaia" and the "Serra do Pilar" Viewpoint. And it is true. Therefore, you should cross the bridge that is already one of the city's classic postcard sceneries the Dom Luís Bridge, and enjoy the view before venturing into the succession of Port Wine Caves with their respective tastings. If you prefer something different, accept the invitation of a boat trip on the Douro Region under the five bridges or beyond. In any case, it is an excellent option for spending an afternoon or some days of relaxation on the Douro River.

TO SEE HISTORIC CENTRE – UNESCO WORLD HERITAGE

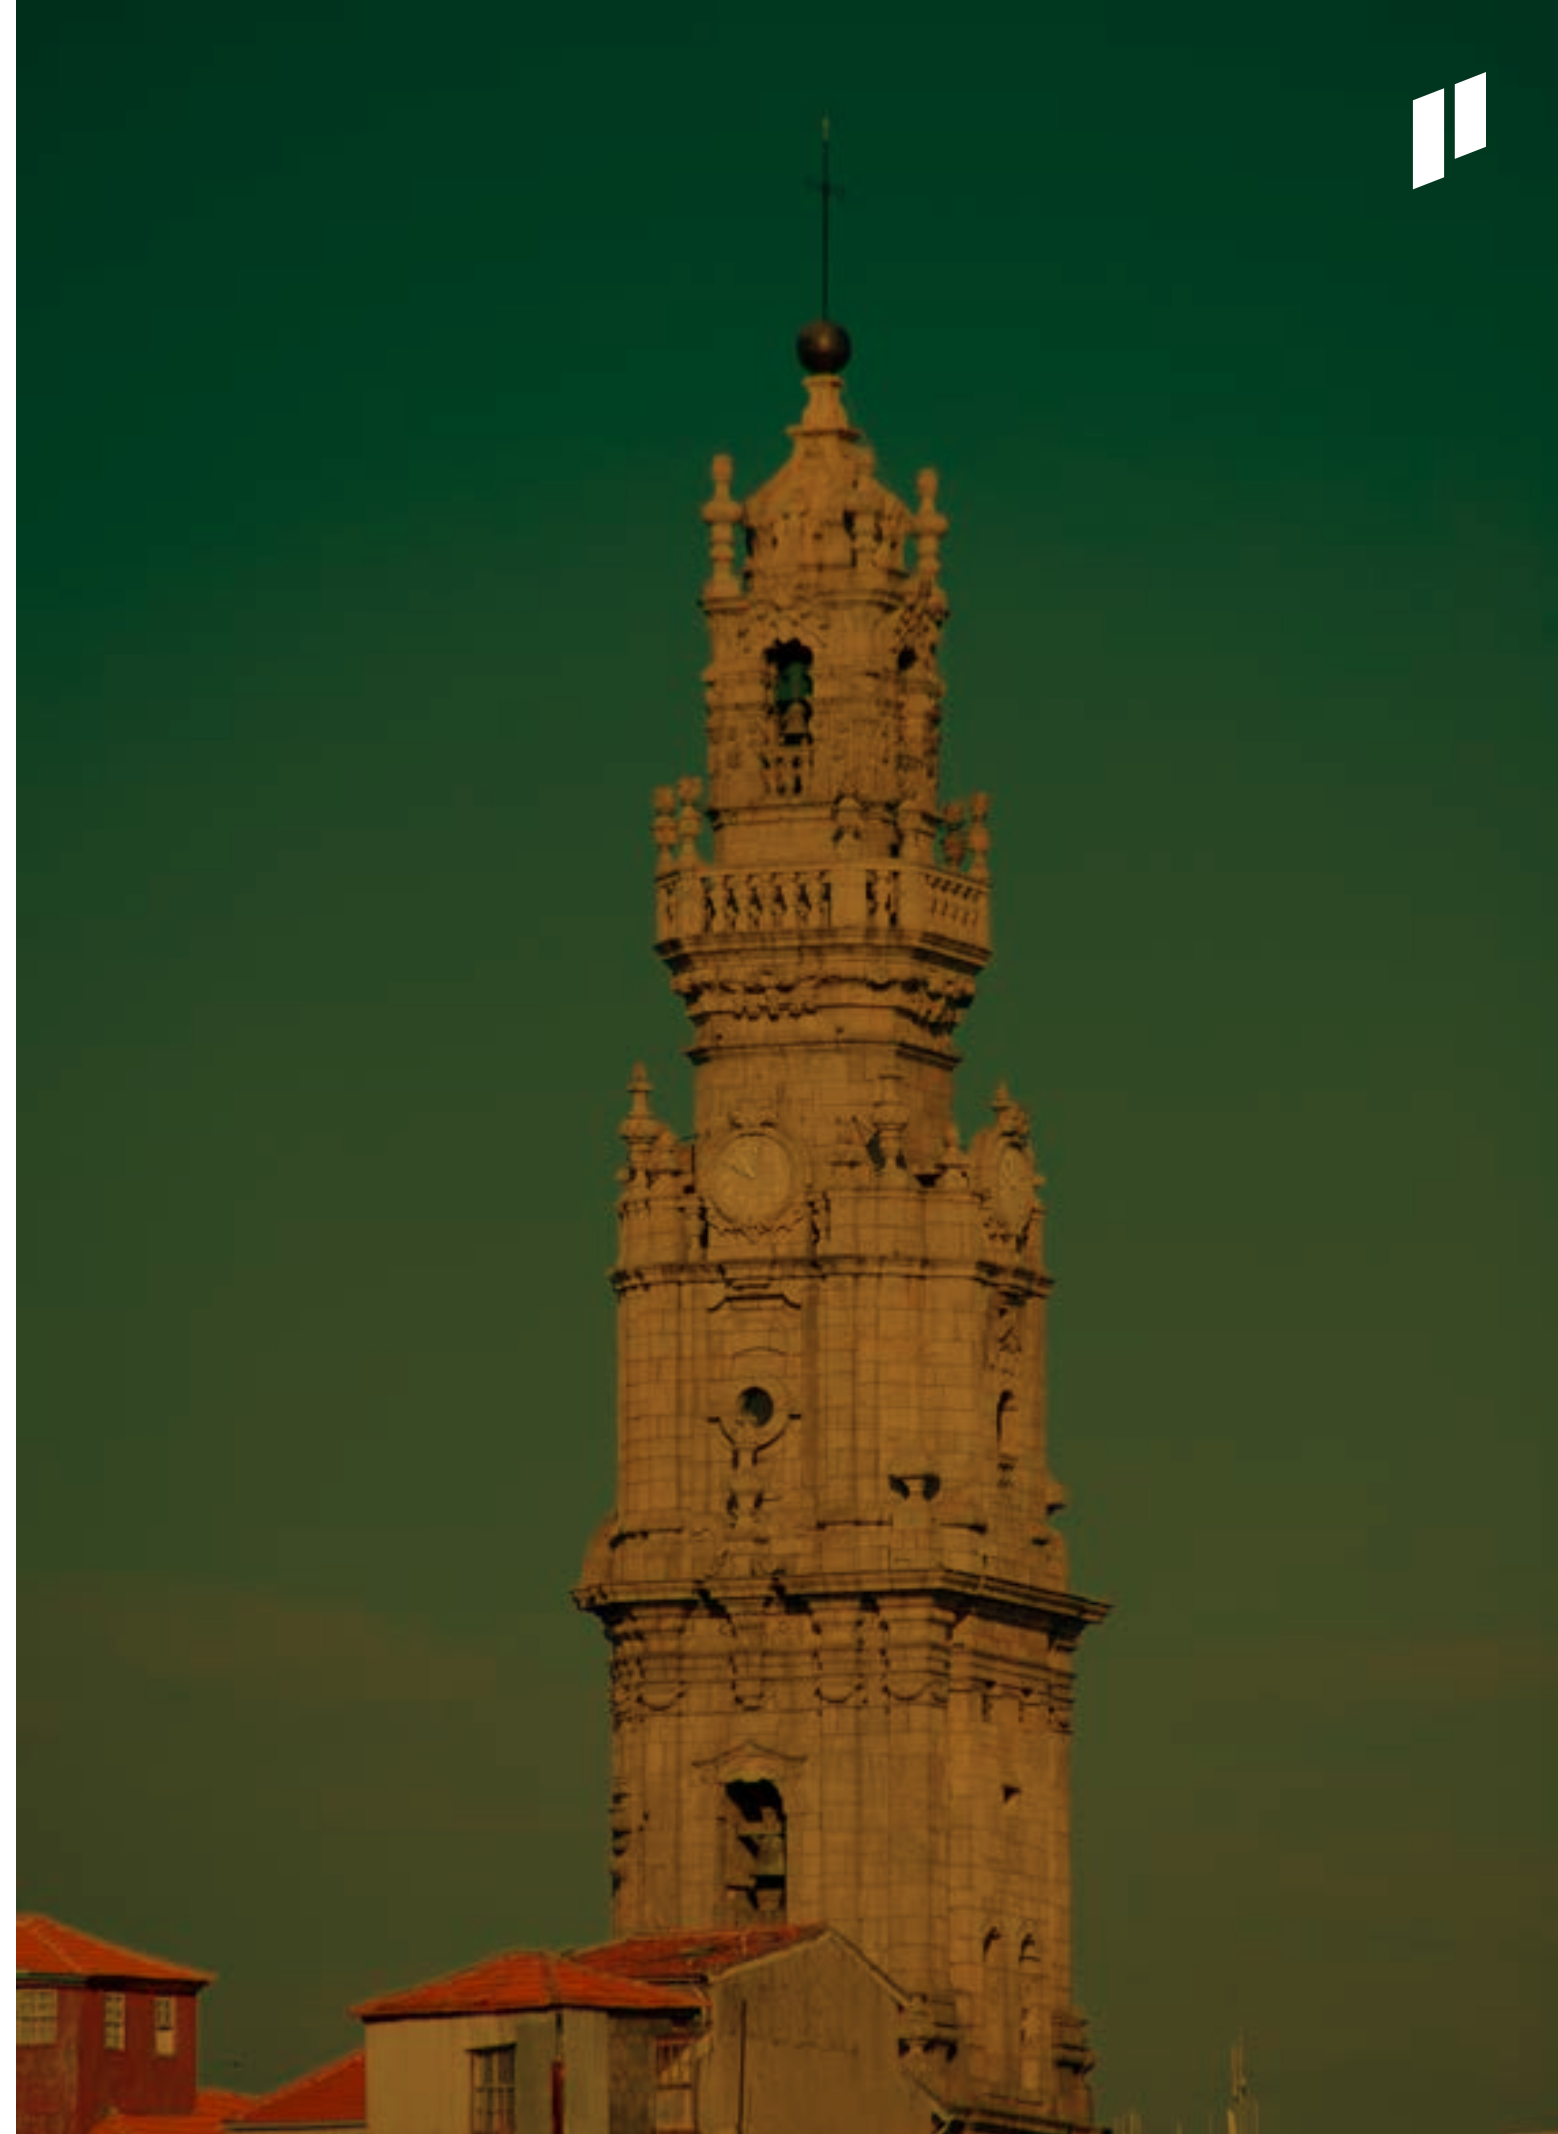

The “Torre dos Clérigos” (Tower of Clerics) is an icon of the city – a baroque tower by Nicolau Nasoni. It is the starting point to discover many other nearby monuments. At the end of the road, the S. Bento Station is famous for its panels with historic glazed tiles. Close to it are the “cadeia da Relação” (where the Portuguese Centre of Photography is located) and the S. Bento da Vitória Monastery.

Descending the road, the Stock Exchange Palace and the “Ordem Terceira de S. Francisco”, where visitors can admire paintings, sculptures, jewelry and furniture.

Back to Cordoaria, the Lello Library and the Carmo and Carmelitas churches will attract the traveler’s attention.

Close to the “Pena Ventosa”, the Cathedral, the Santa Clara Convent and the “Fernandina” City Wall are the most distinctive features. There is so much more to see within a range of only a few kilometers by foot: The National Soares dos Reis Museum, the Port Wine Museum and the “Casa do Infante”.

TO SEE PANORAMIC VIEWS AND THE BEAUTY OF THE GARDENS

With sun, fog or even with rain, Porto must be visited on foot. Despite the ascents and descents, walking around has compensations, with viewpoints and promontories with astonishing panoramic views and different perspectives of the city, the river, the buildings or the sea. Take a cable car ride at the Ribeira de Gaia and climb to the Serra do Pilar or take the Guindais Funicular and save the climb from Ribeira to Batalha. Any of these two routes will offer you the most beautiful views onto the river or the Foz. If you prefer the shadows and the freshness of nature, Porto will offer you its generous parks and romantic gardens. Follow the Gardens of Cordoaria, famous for its statues, until you reach the Gardens of the Crystal Palace and from there go to the Botanical Garden in Campo Alegre, and the Pastelaria Park and finally rest in the Parque da Cidade but only after having reached the sea.

TO EAT MARKET AT THE PORTO'S WATERFRONT

In Porto, one can eat very well for little money. Moreover, it represents the gastronomic tradition of the North of the Country. However, when talking about the gastronomy of Porto, it is mandatory to mention one of its main dishes: Tripe Porto style - a dish with history, which resulted in the nickname of the inhabitants of Porto: "tripeiros".

There is an immense variety of restaurants with an always friendly service and excellent atmosphere. From typical cuisine to fusion cuisine, from a more traditional and familiar atmosphere to the more sophisticated designer restaurants, a visit to Porto guarantees a gastronomic experience that will be etched in your memory.

TO EAT DOURO WINE

To the endless varieties of codfish recipes Porto has added its own dish: Codfish "Gomes de Sá" Style. Here, the octopus is enjoyed fried, in fillets, and with "malandrinho" rice. The Douro table wines are excellent, but during the meal, there will be always a moment for a Port Wine, whether as aperitif or during the dessert. When taking part in a Port Wine tasting at the caves, never forget to buy a bottle.

During your stay, there should always be a moment to taste the traditional "Francesinha", the recipe which was created by a Portuguese emigrant in France. He prepared a secret sauce and conquered the palate and the heart of an entire city. A good "Francesinha" consists on a good loaf of bread stuffed with smoked meats and topped with a smooth melted cheese. Some include eggs and accompany it with French fries. The result is always a full meal that should be enjoyed with some time and in good company. It is an exclusive dish of Porto and an invitation to socialize.
