IN

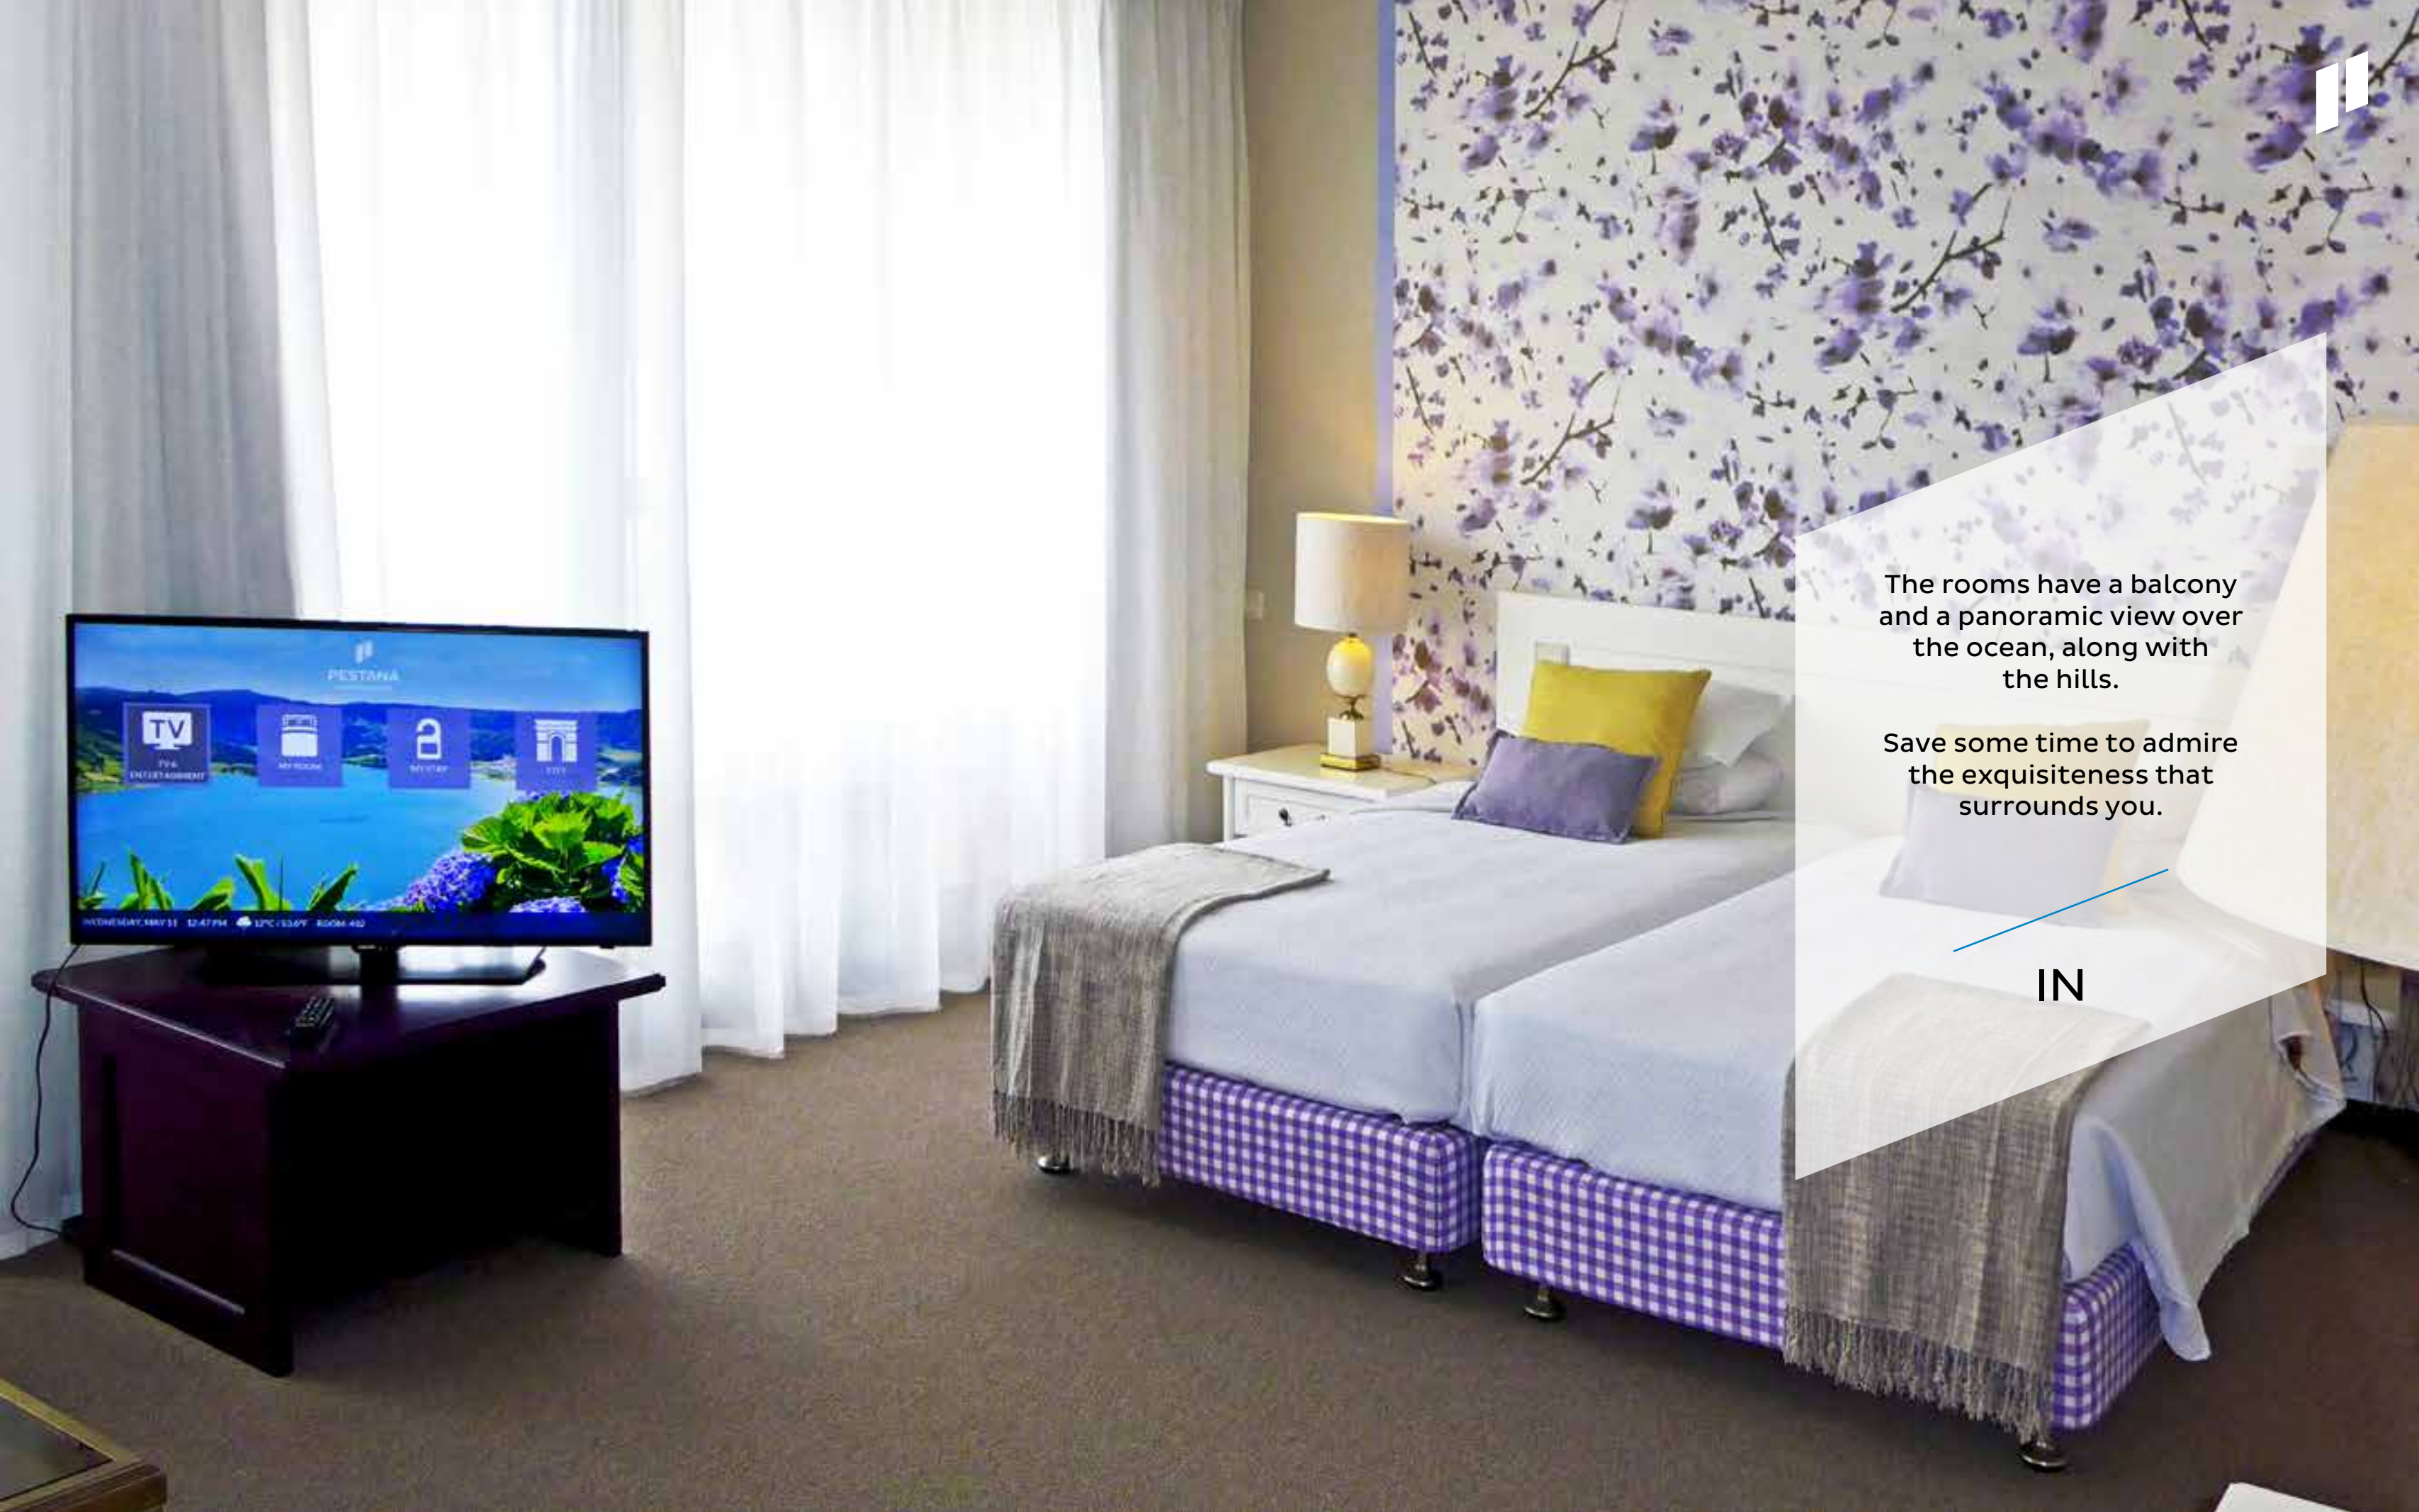

Set on São Miguel Island, with direct access to the beach “Praia de Água d’Alto” and with clear panoramic view to the Atlantic Ocean, you can find here the harmony and peace that you need for your holidays. São Miguel is the largest island of the archipelago, where more than half of the island’s population lives at. Together with Santa Maria Island, São Miguel forms the Eastern Group of the Azores Archipelago. Whether for its proximity to the ocean, as well as for its large outdoor freshwater swimming pool, every single area of this 4-star hotel was exhaustively planned in order to ensure the communion between elegance and good taste with the environment.

An aerial photograph of a coastal property. In the foreground, there is a green lawn with a small white chapel with a dark roof and a bell tower. A winding stone path leads from the chapel towards a sandy beach. The beach is bordered by a low stone wall. Beyond the beach is the ocean with blue water and white waves. In the background, there is a steep, forested hillside with a few buildings. A semi-circular blue structure is visible in the bottom left corner.

A scenic landscape featuring a large body of water (lake or bay) in the middle ground, surrounded by lush green hills and a small town on the far shore. In the foreground, there are large, vibrant blue and purple hydrangea flowers with green leaves. A white geometric shape, resembling a stylized 'L' or a corner, frames the text on the right side of the image.

OUT

The nine islands of the Azores are all of volcanic origin and located in the Atlantic North ocean. The island of São Miguel is the largest and is also known as Green Island for its landscapes and forests.

Given its dimension and the diversity of facilities and services it offers, São Miguel is the island for experiencing, a true gateway to the active discovery of the Azores Archipelago, with many things to do.

TO EAT

In Furnas, the pots containing meat and vegetables for a typical boiled/steamed dish are put into a sac and buried in the geothermal soil. The food cooks for approximately five hours. On São Miguel Island there is a tradition for cultivating exotic fruits such as pineapple, annona, guavas and passion fruit, which are eaten raw or used to make liqueurs. The pineapple green houses, spread throughout Fajã de Baixo, Lagoa and Vila Franca do Campo, preserve age-old practices which can be discovered in guided visit.

The cuisine of São Miguel is filled with fish dishes, always with a common factor: freshness. There are also various types of sea food, and delicacies like the barnacle, a crustacean boiled in sea water. The meat comes from the cattle bred in pastures, and it is soft and tasty. As for appetizers, there are the famous local red, mashed peppers served with fresh cheese. But these local red peppers are also used in various recipes. The bolo lêvedo from Furnas is a cake that is well known and may be served during any meal. As for sweets, the most famous are the Queijadas de Vila Franca do Campo (Vila Franca do Campo Custards). And to top another day in the vacation, smokers may even finish their meal with a locally manufactured cigar or cigarillo.
